

CoLab

Collaborate to explore growth, together

At Biolin Scientific, we are on a mission to expand and grow our portfolio through external collaborations and partnerships. Our area of expertise is in the advanced study of surfaces and interfaces. Through this initiative, we are seeking mutually beneficial collaborations with peer companies, start-ups, or academic groups within surface science across the world!

What we believe in

Our core values are sharing, caring, and daring. One of our strongest assets is knowledge and we share it with partners and customers to help progress research. We truly care about the work our customers do, whether it is research to battle new viruses, coming up with new innovations, or making better products. Lastly, we are daring. We dare to try new things to expand our business. Do you feel the same way?

CoLab

Collaborate to explore growth, together

Mattias Bengtsson,
CEO, Biolin Scientific

“Partnerships are important to our growth strategy. It enables us to expand our portfolio, drive synergies to our existing solutions, and explore future business opportunities together. Through the CoLab initiative, we look forward to working with new ideas and technologies in the field of analytical surface science.”

3 reasons to collaborate

Innovations ahead

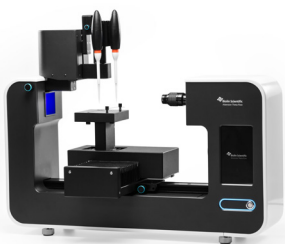

Partnering with us, you will also contribute to our mission to progress surface science research, yielding in new understandings, better products and innovation.

Strong brands

QSense are the very pioneers of QCM-D technology and the global market-leader. Also KSV NIMA has a market-leading position within the field of thin film creation and characterization. For the more competitive tensiometer market Attension is right behind the market-leader, constantly evolving to reach the top.

Global distributor network

We have a knowledgeable network of distribution partners across the globe providing us with the local reach we need for successful business.

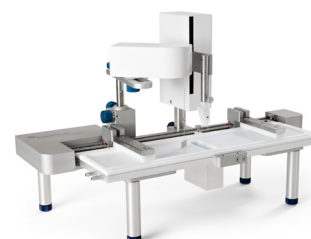

Attension

Attension tensiometers inspire new discoveries and more confident decisions towards seamless production and higher quality products.

QSense

QSense is the world-leading, premium QCM-D solution for nanoscale tracking of interactions at surfaces and interfaces.

KSV NIMA

KSV NIMA provides smart tools for thin film fabrication, deposition, and characterization.

Whether you have an idea for an innovation you need help to develop or could see that we would both benefit from a collaboration we would love to discuss your thoughts! Scan the code to start the conversation!
